Carlsruhe and the Sugar Schedule.

Secretary Carlisle's part in the preparation of the sugar schedule of the tariff bill is officially stated as follows: Senator Jones called upon him and informed him that the subcommittee had agreed upon the sugar schedule, and requested that he put it in proper form. This the secretary did, the paragraph prepared being one of few lines and providing after January 1, 1895, there shall be levied and collected on all sugars a duty of 40 per cent, and upon all sugars above No. 16, Dutch standard in color, a duty of one-eighth of one per cent per pound in addition to the duty of 40 per cent ad valorem. This amendment was sent to Senator Jones at the capitol. In the afternoon in response to a request of Senator Jones, Secretary Carlisle visited the capitol and was informed that more changes were considered, and being requested to do so made some interlinings in the amendment, so that it read:

On or after January 1, 1895, there shall be levied and collected on all sugars not above No. 16 Dutch standard in color, and on all tank bottoms, syrup of cane juice or of beet juice, melada, concentrated molasses, a duty of 40 per cent, and upon all sugars above No. 16 Dutch standard in color there shall be levied and collected a duty of 45 per cent.

As already stated, Secretary Carlisle prepared the original amendment in accordance with the compromise that had been reached by the Democratic members of the finance committee, and the alterations in the amendment at the capitol were made to meet the views of a committee.

The committee then decided that a provision should be incorporated providing that the Hawaiian reciprocity treaty should not be affected by the schedule. The book containing the treaties was obtained by Secretary Carlisle from the room of a foreign committee, and he wrote a provision which preserves the Hawaiian treaty. All this is in the handwriting of Secretary Carlisle. This event occurred on Saturday, July 5. That night it occurred to Secretary Carlisle that the first paragraph of the schedule providing for repeal of the bounty fixed the date of repeal for July 1, 1894, while duty on sugar was not to be operative until January 1, 1895. Owing to the intention of committee to issue a print of amended bill on Monday Secretary Carlisle on Sunday morning called upon Senator Jones for the purpose of directing attention to discrepancy. That visit made Sunday, May 6, was the only one made by Mr. Carlisle to the committee without an invitation, the change alluded to is the original suggestion he made in connection with the formulation of bill.

Inerrancy of the Scripture.

The Presbyterian church has shown its courage and consistency in declaring, substantially, that Rev. H. P. Smith holds heretical views respecting the bible. It could not do otherwise. It is based absolutely upon the foundation-stone of the inerrancy of the Protestant version of the Hebrew scriptures. To step from that foundation by so much as the breadth of a hair means logical death. Our own Dr. Brooks very clearly states the issue that confronts biblical Protestantism, when he says, in substance, every chapter, page, line, paragraph, word and inflection of a word in the bible is absolutely and verbally inspired—the infallible word of God. No orthodox Protestant church can escape this conclusion. The case stands like this: Either the bible is absolutely inspired, or it is not. If it is not, there must be some power outside of itself which has authority to decide which parts are inspired and which are not. And that power, whether church, creed or individual, then becomes the supreme authority, and not the bible. It is supremely illogical and foolish for a man to say that he accepts the bible as the perfect guide of faith and practice, and then attempt to discriminate between different parts of the book. The theory of the Presbyterian church is very rigid, but it is very consistent and very logical when you admit its premises. That theory is that the bible is the word of God; that its divine character does not depend upon the testimony of any church or any tradition. It is its own witness, and you cannot add to or subtract from the bible without impairing its divine character. As a Presbyterian Dr. Smith accepts this statement of faith, and he cannot escape from its logical consequences. If he says that parts of the bible are human and parts of it divine, he creates a new infallibility, whose function it is to discriminate.
